

The Council of Logistics Engineering Professionals

Corporate Membership Program

and

Corporate Membership Application Form

March 2021

Thank you for your interest in Corporate Membership with the Council of Logistics Engineering Professionals

Education is the Cornerstone of the Council of Logistics Engineering Professionals

Our passion is providing member-focused education and advocacy for the logistics community.

CLEP Mission

Advance the Logistics Engineering profession through education, mentoring and outreach. Disseminate the interdisciplinary principles of Supportability to Industry and Government. Collaborate with others to strengthen shared values, processes, and capabilities.

The Board of Officers of the Council of Logistics Engineering Professionals (CLEP) thank you for your interest in supporting the growth and development of our organization. With your Corporate Membership, you will have a direct hand in empowering men and women to pursue their passions and to succeed in logistics-related fields.

CLEP is the leading professional logistics engineering organization representing logisticians, supportability managers, product support managers and other related professionals who conceive, design, develop, test, produce, outfit, operate, maintain, and support both military and commercial systems and their associated subsystems and components. CLEP serves these professionals who renew the technology, and innovators who bring forth new concepts.

CLEP works to advance the knowledge of logistics engineering and management in public and private applications and operations, enhance the professionalism and well-being of members, as well as promoting logistics engineering as a career field.

Corporate Members are crucial to enabling CLEP to provide the services our members, and the logistics workforce at large, value. As one of the largest organizations for Logistics Engineers/Managers, Supportability Managers and Product Support Managers we strive not only for the personal and professional development of our members, but also for the ability to make a positive impact on others through numerous service and outreach events.

We host many educational and training events and encourage members to interact and connect with one another. We have organized professional events in the past that allow for company representatives to present their services and products and network with attendees at these events.

But, as you are aware, the cost of offering educational events can be enormous. With your Corporate Membership of CLEP, it will enable us to present webinars, training workshops, contribute to our scholarship programs, and hold conferences and symposiums. With your help, we will be able to continue offering these educational programs to the community of logistics professionals aspire, advance, and achieve as professional logisticians.
